This study is concerned with prosody and language contact. The fact that language
contact induces
change is well documented, but few
studies focus on the
prosodic effects of
contact-induced

Abstract. It has frequently been shown that speakers prosodically reduce repeated words in discourse. This phenomenon has been claimed to facilitate speech recognition and to be language universal. In particular, the relationship between the information value of a word in a discourse context and its prosodic prominence
